A Message of Thanks from Local Author Grateful Heart

I want to sincerely thank everyone in our community who has supported mental health awareness by purchasing, sharing or reviewing my poetry collection, The Breaking of Silence.
When I wrote this book, my hope was to turn difficult life experiences into something that might help others feel less alone. I wanted to give a voice to those who are struggling, waiting for help or finding it difficult to speak about what they are going through. All profits from the book's first month were donated to the Naomi Society in loving memory of Brenda Tatlock. My next goal is to raise profits for the Women's Centre to support yoga classes.
My message goes beyond a book. Mental health deserves to be talked about just as openly as physical health. We don't have to be professionals to make a difference. Simply being willing to listen and stay beside someone who is struggling can mean more than we realize.
As I wrote in my poem, What Can We Do?:
Not as experts.
Not as saviors.
But as people willing to see, to listen, to stay.
My hope is that we can continue building a community where people feel seen, heard and supported.
Thank you for helping me share this message. Together, we really can make a difference.

With gratitude, Grateful Heart
Local poet and mental health advocate

The book is available on Amazon and at Glenn Hill Berry Farm in Lochaber on Highway 7.
